Art Unit: 1793

1. Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. The term "moldedin" in the last line of clam 1 and elsewhere in the present application is not a standard term in the art, and thus its definition is ambiguous. Further, this term does not appear to be simply a misprint of "molded in". Clarification is required as to what steps/procedures would fall within the scope of the invention as recited in claim 1. Claims dependent upon claim 1 are likewise rejected under this statute.

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Krotz et al. (U.S. Patent 5,915,160) in view of Newkirk et al. (U.S. Patent 5,007,476).

Krotz et al. discloses a process substantially as claimed, i.e. forming a powder of a material that meets the limitations of instant claims 5, 6, and 11-20 (such as gold and a dilute element such as a rare earth element), oxidizing this material in a ball mill, followed by consolidating (taken by the examiner to be substantially equivalent to "moldedin solidifying"). With regard to instant claims 4, 8, 9 and 10, this product can then be extruded; see Krotz column 3, lines 29-30. With respect to instant claim 2, the ball mill used in the Krotz process would appear to meet the definition of an "attritor" as presently claimed.

Art Unit: 1793

Krotz does not disclose that the ball mill includes water as required by the instant claims. Newkirk indicates that it was known in the art, at the time of the invention, to include water in a ball mill used to form oxidized metal matrix composite materials; see Newkirk column 33, lines 54-67. With respect to claims 3 and 7, any water used in the prior art process is held to be "ultrapure", in the absence of any numerical or other objective definition of this term.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art, carrying out the process of Krotz et al., to include water in the ball mill as taught by Newkirk et al., in order to ensure proper oxidation of the material undergoing the milling process.

4. The remainder of the art cited on the attached PTO-892 and 1449 forms is of interest. This art is held to be no more relevant to the claimed invention than the art as applied in the rejections, supra.
